Master of Psychomotor Therapy (Psychomotricity)

Do you want to improve your occupational and therapeutic skills as a PMT professional at a Master’s degree level? You will be the professional who uses the body and movement in therapy and convincingly demonstrates to his environment how important this is. You will acquire a professional attitude at a Master’s level and learn about the broader contexts of psychosocial and psychiatric issues. The programme broadens your professional knowledge and teaches you how to implement research results into your daily practice. This is a Windesheim University of Applied Science master program in the Netherlands.

WHO IS THIS FOR?
The English Master’s programme of Psychomotor Therapy (PMT) is intended for all European psychomotor therapists with a Bachelor PMT or equivalent PMT degree. If you want to follow the full Master’s programme, you have to meet an employment requirement. You can also opt to follow separate courses of the Master’s programme.

MODULAR OPTIONS
The modular and flexible structure enables you to combine your work, study and private life. You can follow separate courses so that you are in charge of your own study programme planning.

Programme content
The programme content is based on a model of competence-based learning leading to learning outcomes at a Master’s degree level which focuses on the following three pillars:
1. Psychomotor Therapeutic skills;
2. Professional leadership;
3. Practice based research.

At the start of your Master’s programme, you will formulate a number of personal learning questions from your daily practice as learning goals. You will link these goals to the professional competences of the Master’s programme, thereby creating direct interaction between your work situation and the Master’s programme. In this way, you effortlessly integrate your acquired knowledge and skills into your own practice. Our Master’s degree programme helps you develop into a professional therapist at a higher level. After graduation you have improved your skills to substantiate your psychomotor interventions theoretically, show professional leadership in example by developing PMT products, and set-up and conduct practice based research.

COURSES
As a regular student doing the full degree programme, you can complete this Master’s programme in two years. Alternatively, you can choose to attend individual Master’s degree courses, paying for each one separately. This enables you to spread your full study load and the costs involved, or to do only certain 1st-year courses as a retraining or refresher training programme. Admission requirements are set for each course separately.
Pillar 1: Psychomotor Therapeutic skills
Module: knowledge, therapeutic and methodological skills
This course raises your professional skills in practice. It consists of three parts: knowledge & theory, your therapeutic skills and your methodical skills. Key objectives are: the ability to take adequate therapeutic action when dealing with clients with complex problems and reflection on your own role in the therapy process; high degree of independence in your own practice and in clinical or in-patient care institutions, working on prevention, diagnosis and treatment of disorders in a methodical manner and with an appropriate attitude.

Module: master-classes
For your Psychomotor Therapy Master’s program you will choose two separate master-classes from a larger offering of current master-classes. This enables you to intensify your knowledge of a specific theme or, for example, a specific client group of Psychomotor Therapy. The master-classes will teach you more about the practical approach, methodical structure as well as the theoretical and scientific accountability of such a specific PMT treatment.

Modules: coaching & supervision
You will receive coaching during the entire learning process of your Master’s programme. Your coach will help you keep your studies on track, concretize your learning goals and prepare all your assessments. During supervision sessions you reflect on your own attitude and your specific therapy interventions with the aim of professionalizing your skills at the Master’s degree level.

Pillar 2: Professional leadership
Modules: profiling
In health care, psychomotor therapy is still not always a self-evident option, which means that as a PMT professional, you need to raise your profile. This requires theoretical knowledge of therapeutic, methodical practices and proven effectiveness of interventions, therapies and methods. In the first course you work on a product in which you substantiate methodical and therapeutic choices based on theoretical professional and scientific literature. Finally, in the second course you will learn how to position yourself as a psychomotor therapist in different contexts.

Pillar 3: Practice based research
Modules: research methodology & master thesis
You will learn how to set up and conduct practice based research at the Master’s degree level. In the first year you will follow the research skills course and write your research proposal. In the second year you do the actual research and write your Master’s thesis in a collaboration between researchers, which completes your Master’s degree programme.

Lectorate of Movement, Health and Well-being
As a student you will have the opportunity to bring your Master’s thesis in line with one of the research lines of the lectorate of Movement, Health and Well-being: improving body experience, regulation of emotion and behaviour, expression and relaxation. This will give additional depth to your research. Given the importance of increasing the level of evidence for Psychomotor Therapy, the focus lies on practice based quantitative studies and systematic reviews.

Certification
Upon completion you will receive the certificate: Master of Psychomotricity. This is a Dutch diploma equivalent to a Master in any European country. In addition, you will receive a Europass Diploma Supplement to clarify the nature and level of the diploma. The supplement provides insight into the nature, level and content of the PMT master’s programme. It contains a description of the programme completed and the results obtained.

Assessment and Graduation
The Master’s programme has a variety of assessment types, depending on the course. In the final phase, the final qualifications for the three pillars will be assessed in four assessments. I.e. professional leadership is assessed by an oral presentation and practice based research is assessed by the master thesis.
